Introduction

Today the united diocese of Tuam, Killala and Achonry covers all of county Mayo, much of the counties of Galway and Sligo and a small portion of county Roscommon. During the Reformation, the bishopric of Mayo was annexed to the province or archbishopric of Tuam from 1569. Between the 17th and 19th centuries, Tuam was further united at various times to other smaller dioceses – to Kilfenora from 1661 to 1742, Ardagh from 1742 to 1839, and Killala and Achonry from 1834.

Small quantities of records representing Tuam's association with Kilfenora and Ardagh which were uncovered during the process of sorting the materials listed here, have been set aside for cataloguing at a later stage. In the case of the bishoprics of Killala and Achonry (united as one since 1622) the relationship with Tuam has been a more sustained one. Under the Church Temporalities (Ireland) Act 1833, Killala and Achonry were united to the archbishopric of Tuam from 1834, and five years later following the death of the Most Revd Hon. Power Le Poer Trench (1782-1839), who had served as archbishop since 1819, the dioceses were united as one to that of Tuam, Killala and Achonry in the province of Armagh. Trench's successors were thus bishops, not archbishops, and from this date Tuam lost its metropolitan status as a province in its own right. The Tuam-specific papers that are catalogued below as D5/ provide snapshots of evidence about the pre-1834 provincial role (with the odd survivals of papers for two archbishops (Bourke and Trench) in section 12/. as well as a run of registrar-related materials from the mid-18th century onwards in sections 14/ and 15/. For a full list of the Archbishops and Bishops of both Tuam, and of Killala & Achonry, see Appendix 1 below.

In spite of the “merger”, Killala and Achonry continued to operate its own diocesan registry as a distinct and independent entity for a further 25 years until the unification of the two diocesan registries under the terms of the Ecclesiastical Courts and Registries (Ireland) Act 1864. And even when the registries were united thereafter the papers reveal how both Tuam and Killala and Achonry maintained various levels of autonomy and independent decision-making, each with its own separate synods, councils and education structures, as well as printing separate annual reports until the latter half of the 20th century. These distinct arrangements have been adhered to in the archival arrangement of the papers, and as far as possible papers obviously created and maintained by the Killala and Achonry registry are listed together as D5A/.

Significantly, it is the Killala and Achonry part of the collection that is by far the oldest including the earliest document of the entire run being a case presented by the Most Revd Miler McGrath (1552-1622), Bishop of Killala, 1607-22 and of Achonry, 1613-22, & Archbishop of Cashel, relating to a diocesan claim on lands, c. 1613, and additionally several other documents relating specifically to lands, benefices, rentals and income of the diocese, 1658-1901, that may have been assembled as evidence of the extent of the dioceses in preparation for either the uniting of the bishoprics of Tuam, Killala and Achonry in 1834, or the later unification of the two diocesan registries in 1864 (section D5A/2). The Killala and Achonry section is further enhanced by a most revealing run of returns made to government from 1797 onwards that includes invaluable records documenting the diocesan response to the famine that afflicted many parts of north Connaught, especially Mayo, in the early 1820s (section D5A/7/7 and /8) and several returns revealing the rate of church building and repairs undertaken by the reforming and innovative Bishop James Verschoyle (1749/50-1834) – the last bishop of the diocese in its own right (e.g. D5A/1 and D5A/7/1-6) from 1811 until his death in 1834.

The archival resources that survive for both Tuam and Killala and Achonry are nevertheless relatively modest compared with two vast and separate diocesan collections that formerly existed prior to 1922. Along with most of the records of the Irish dioceses up to and including the 1860s, the bulk were, as many researchers will know, tragically destroyed by fire during the civil war of 1922. A glance at the list of the records of the ecclesiastical records destroyed, as compiled by the Assistant Deputy Keeper of Public Records Herbert Wood in his Guide to the records deposited in the Public Record Office of Ireland (Dublin, 1919) provides insight to the array of administrative, testamentary, matrimonial and court papers, as they had been created by the two separate diocesan registries up to the mid-1860s, and then transferred to PROI. An electronic copy of the ecclesiastical sections of this Guide, easily searchable as a pdf, is available courtesy of Beyond 2022 here:

The loss of all of those records make what has survived in the custody of both dioceses and transferred in various caches of unsorted papers to the RCB Library since the mid-1980s all the more invaluable. Given that the list that follows below amounts to over 60 pages is testament to the conscientious record-keeping that continued in both registries, and the fact that some pre-1860s materials were not transferred but kept in local custody for administrative reasons. This seems particular true of by far the largest single section in the collection D5/10 being the miscellaneous papers relating to individual parishes, district churches and unions in the three dioceses of Tuam, Killala & Achonry, 1684-1980. Adhering to the united post-1864 registry arrangement, these papers have been maintained in alphabetical order, and give a good flavour of diocesan administration of individual parish units, including documents relating to clergy, such as nominations, installations and retirements from parishes, documents relating to property, such as consecrations of churches, formations of curacies and parochial districts, glebe inspection reports, and property rentals and sales. Given the arrangement by place, this section is likely to prove very useful to local historians but it should also be consulted by others wishing to get a sense of diocesan oversight of local clergy, property, financial matters and a host of other issues.

The Tuam collection (D5/) consists of 21 record groups, the first nine of which are volumes of pre- and post-Disestablishment records. The real meat of this collection is the run of papers relating to specific parishes, district churches and unions mentioned above, without any distinction of diocesan boundaries. The Killala and Achonry-specific materials are grouped at the end, as D5A/ and consists of a further 13 record groups.

Whilst the pre-1860s materials about bishops are very small (see sections D5/13 for Tuam, and D5A/1 for Killala and Achonry), the large collection of maps (D5/17) and the surviving operating papers of both registries (see section D5/14 for Tuam, and D5A for Killala and Achonry) provide a new and valuable body of evidence about how diocesan registries and their registrars conducted their business during the 18th and 19th centuries. Of particular interest in this regard and documented by the records of the Killala & Achonry registrars' papers in particular, is the familial succession of at least two generations of the Stock family, relatives of Bishop Joseph Stock. H. Frederick Stock Esq. the bishop's son, became registrar from 1799, and later shared the appointment with his nephew, the Revd Samuel Stock, the two being appointed jointly in 1830 (see D5/6/1). Bishop Stock was captured by the French on their invasion in the west of Ireland in 1798, and held prisoner in his palace. His account of this has been published, while further Stock manuscripts are available in NUI Galway (P10) and correspondence in Trinity College Library (Ms 947 & 948).

One particular registry document reveals that 1922 was not the first time that diocesan records from Killala and Achonry had been lost. Writing from his home address at 'The Lodge, Killala' on 14 January 1811, William Palmer, Registrar of Killala & Achonry, responded to queries on the state of public records, including diocesan papers, put to him by the Board of First Fruits Office, Dublin (Section D5A/7/5). In his handwritten return Palmer reveals how ‘the records are kept in mahogany presses, and the building is the registrar’s own private property’. He goes on to describe what he considered the indifferent state of the records that he had inherited from his predecessors which he attributed ‘to the Rebellion of 1798’, describing how they were literally trodden under foot: ‘I was informed the House in which the Records were kept in the town of Ardnaree was broken open, and the books and papers thrown into the street, where very many of the were destroyed’. He was also concerned about the fact that the records tended to accompany successive registrars, with the result that there was ‘no fixed place of preservation of them, in consequence of which they have been continually moved from one house to another in various parts of the dioceses’. Palmer’s observations in the early 19th century capture a pattern in relating to record-keeping that has inevitably continued in many Church of Ireland dioceses, with successive appointments of senior diocesan officials, not least the registrars, but also archdeacons, secretaries and others, records changing from one generation to the next, and with papers being moved from deaneries, rectories and elsewhere accompanying the relevant office-holders. During the 1960s the Very Revd Joseph Jackson (1884-1970), diocesan registrar for over 40 years from 1921 to 1965, who was also a keen local historian (as revealed in his personal papers which make up group D5/21 below) took it upon himself to transfer some materials to the Public Records Office of Ireland, during the 1960s.

Appendix 2 provides the details of the items transferred to PROI. However, following the appointment of Dr Raymond Refaussé as the Church’s first archivist in 1984, he arranged for many of these items to be transferred to the RCB Library where they could be assimilated into first large tranche of diocesan registry materials transferred to the Library at that time, as authorised by the Diocesan Council on the recommendation of the Very Revd W.J. Grant (1929-2009) who was dean of Tuam and rector of Cong 1981-1993, and also served as archdeacon of the diocese from 1980. Dean Grant was encouraged and assisted by Mrs Brigid Clesham, a professional archivist based in Cong, whose interventions at local level helped to put some shape on a large and by then unwieldy accumulation of records and for making early lists and overseeing the safe transfer of several collections of the diocesan records between 1985 and 2000.

Early and invaluable attempts to group and list the growing and organic collection of diocesan records were made both by Mrs Clesham and Dr Refaussé, and a valuable and complimentary set of architectural drawings, including several diocesan glebe houses, were added to the Library’s digitized online catalogue of architectural drawings, available here <https://archdrawing.ireland.anglican.org/>

For the body of the collection, with each new cache of papers from a different location, the job became more complicated and needed focused archival attention. Arising from ongoing discussions about a records management programme for the Church as a whole, and using Tuam, Killala and Achonry Diocesan Archive as a pilot project, the Library was allocated a specific fund by the central Church to engage the services of Arcline to systematically arrange the collection, building up a comprehensive picture of the record-keeping and archiving requirements of the diocese as they worked. Two archivists Alicia Cooney followed by Ciara Daly carried out this work from June 2019 and again in early 2020, supervised by the Librarian and Archivist, who also completed the work on the Killala and Achonry part of the collection. This was further enhanced by a specific project to catalogue the maps and plans (D5/17) undertaken by Bryan Whelan, Assistant Librarian. Finally, the historian Dr Miriam Moffitt who is so familiar with this region made invaluable editing comments. Thus spanning the course of 35 years, and involving several generations of professional archivists and librarians, it has truly been a team effort to at last share the detailed catalogue list that has been long-awaited by the wider research community.

3. Visitations and Rural Deans' Returns

1/ Visitations

Note that in the RCB Library collection of visitations, there is one late 18th-century incomplete set of returns for the year 1782, which predates the earliest of six additional visitations that were salvaged from the Public Records Office of Ireland in 1922, and are today held in National Archives of Ireland, for the following dates: 1795; 1806; 1808; 1816-21; 1823 and 1825-38. The second and third items in the RCB Library collection below (for 1827 and 1837 respectively) fit in around these dates and are visitations proper. Thereafter, the run consists of rural deanery returns which are stitched together, but not bound as volumes.

1. 1782 [Loose returns completed by the ministers and church wardens, incomplete]
2. 1827 [Loose]
3. 1837 [Loose]

11/ Miscellaneous

1. Tabular account book showing the profit and loss of each parish, [linked with assessment?]
Undated but definitely late 19th century

10. Miscellaneous Papers Relating to Individual Parishes, District Churches and Unions, 1684-1980

This group is by far the largest single section in the collection and is partly the result of archival intervention, but principally based on a united diocesan registry system to gather materials relating to specific individual parishes, or parish unions, or in some cases specific district churches, created from the mid-19th century onwards in the united dioceses of Tuam, Killala & Achonry. In most cases there is a box of materials for each one, but in some cases (as indicated below) there is just a file placed on the top of the next available box. The collection which dates from 1684 (on account of materials of that date being in the Kilcommon parish collection) reflects registry interaction with specific places, and includes documents relating to clergy, such as nominations, installations and retirements from parishes, documents relating to property, such as consecrations of churches, formations of curacies and parochial districts, glebe inspection reports, and property rentals and sales. Materials also include correspondence relating to church affairs such as clergy, property, financial matters and a host of other issues.

(Numbers to be inserted at a later date will correspond with boxes)

2/ District Maps

A collection of significant district maps drawn up to de-mark new parochial divisions carved from the two former massive parishes of Omey and Ballinakill covering the same area. Organised alphabetically by area name. These maps date predominantly from the 1860s (with two from the 1850s) and all include administrative detail in the form of letters from the relevant bodies or authorities, suggesting some significant parochial boundary reorganisation was underway by the 1860s. According to historian, Dr Miriam Moffitt, whose book Soupers and Jumpers analysed in detail the work of the Irish Church Missions, this evidence shows the operational development of the mission infrastructure, into which mission stations, schools and readers would be inserted. The small quantity of correspondence and related papers gathered together as file /7 below provides further context and further text-based lists of townlands etc and with interesting population information therein. The collection demonstrates the realignment of historic parish boundaries to allow for new theological realities.

1. Aasleagh

'Deed of erection of the Parochial District of Aasleagh', dated June 2, 1854 and registered 13 July, 1854. Note inscribed by John Cather, incumbent of the parish of Aughagower in the Union of Westport, consenting to the formation of Aasleagh parochial district. Contains deed and note signed by 'Lord Baron Plunket'.

79 cm x 93 cm (folded)

June/July 1854

2. Ballyconree

'District Cure of Ballyconree, Diocese of Tuam' (Killalla being crossed out). Map shows the townlands and boundaries of the new parish which was created from the 'parish of Omey in the Union of Omey'. Attached is a letter, with stamp, from Bishop Brodrick Bernard. The map is based on an Ordnance Survey, but no further information is given.

93 cm x 136 cm (folded into booklet)

Surveyor?

'Received July 29, 1868'.

3. Castlekirk

'Parochial district of Castlekirk' showing the formation of the parish by separation from the parish of Cong. Contains various seals and stamps, as well as a letter attached by 'Thomas, Lord Baron Plunket, by divine permission, Lord Bishop of Tuam, Killalla & Achonry'.

Surveyor?

Dated March 4, 1856, signed March 24, 1856

6. Renvyle

Formation of parochial district from the parish of Ballinakill due to the inhabitants of several townlands of Ballinakill being unable to attend their local parish church due to the vast distances. This map shows the townlands of the new parochial district, as well as the boundaries and is based on the Ordnance Survey map (9C Galway). It has attached a letter signed by Bishop Plunket that is dated May 8, 1861.

124 cm x 179 cm (folded into booklet)

Surveyor?

Date in ink on front 17 June, 1861.

7. Sellerna

Map showing the formation of the parochial district to be known as Sellerna, based on the Ordnance Survey map, with mandate and seal of Bishop Plunket, dated 2 August 1854.

8. Related Papers

Being a file of correspondence, related lists and some legal papers concerning boundaries and parochial districts, with more extensive material including lists of parishioners for Kilcummin and Moyrus (Roundstone). One early item from the Boundary Department of the Ordnance Survey of Ireland concerning the Parishes of Templemary and Rathreagh is unrelated.

1830; 1863; 1874; 1876

3/ Miscellaneous maps

4/ Printed Secondary Maps

Being a smaller collection of 16 various Ordnance Survey maps showing parts of Galway and Mayo (corresponding with Tuam Diocese). These maps were probably purchased and used by the diocesan registry or office in order to determine proposed boundaries, but were never altered in any way. They have been retained to reflect the cartographical extent of the 19th and 20th century diocesan administration.

18. Correspondence

1. File of miscellaneous correspondence of successive diocesan registrars with related papers interleaved, including routine correspondence addressed to R.J. Kinkead, Secretary of the Diocesan Council 1873-1875, and a couple of later items, including circular concerning permissive prayers in connection with the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth, 1953.

21. Papers of the Very Revd Joseph Jackson, 1933-1966

This section concerns the working papers of the Very Revd Joseph Jackson (1884-1970), Diocesan Registrar 1921-1965, Dean and Rector of Tuam 1945-1966. The collection reveals his deep interest in local history and other subjects, and compliments other materials found amongst the Tuam Cathedral records in section 11/ above.

It should further be noted that the Library also holds a typescript copy of the 'Memoir of Joseph Jackson' (PC71), which is a typed manuscript based on hand-written notes in various notebooks put together by his son-in-law Harry Williamson. The memoir alludes to his early life in Dublin, where he was born in 1884, as a choir boy in Christ Church Cathedral choir, his student days in Trinity, and then his clerical life, following ordination as curate in both Clones and Waterford Cathedral, before becoming rector of Claremorris, and of Castlebar before becoming Dean of Tuam in 1945. The memoir further reveals his deep love of music and training as an organist under the tutelage of John Horan.

1. Notebooks compiled by Jackson outlining many aspects of the history of the diocese with copies of outgoing correspondence 1928: 1961-1962 1964-1965. Also includes detailed notes on index cards of sources for diocesan history, references to schools and churches.
[Undated, 1960s?]
2. Additional handwritten notes on key dates with details (institutions, leases set, churches opened etc) for specific parishes.
[Undated]

3. Alphabetical lists of clergy arranged under the following headings: appointments, letters dismissory and resignations, which appears to correspond with some of the content of the clergy files (see D5/13 Box 2 above)
[Undated]
4. File of general enquiries and correspondence sent to Dean Jackson 1933-1966. Includes Letter from William Tuam concerning the dedication of a mural tablet; Letter from John C. [Undated]

NOTE: For further episcopal materials, see sections 2/ and 3/ below.

2. Documents relating specifically to lands, benefices, rentals and income of the diocese, 1658-1901

Miscellaneous returns, leases and correspondence relating to lands, benefices, rentals and incomes possibly assembled as evidence of the extent of the dioceses in preparation for either the uniting of the bishoprics of Tuam, Killala and Achonry in 1834, or the later unification of the two diocesan registries under the terms of the Ecclesiastical Courts and Registries (Ireland) Act 1864, as follows:-

1. Copy of contract dealing with lands in the barony of Tirawly, Co. Mayo for the Bishop of Killala, 6 July 168; with later map of the part of the parish of Killalaw, in the same barony, being part of the See lands, 1811
1658; 1811
2. Document entitled 'Authenticated extracts from the Down Survey of lands of the sees of Killala and Achonry' giving details of individual parishes (in alphabetical order) in the baronies of Costello and Tiranley. On the reverse of this document is an unrelated 'List of churches to be built' [in various dioceses] including Tuam, but also Armagh, Dromore, Dublin, Ferns and Ossory, and costs before and after the addition of the 'King's Money'.
1682 & 1684; 1766
3. List of rental plots and tenants names with details of arrears, possibly related to the episcopacy of Mordecai Cary, Bishop of Killala 1736-51.
1745-46
4. Rent roll of Killala and Achonry, including tenants and values for plots in Killala town
1759
5. Rent roll of glebes in the diocese of Killala
1784
6. A return of the lands and tenants with their value 'Occupied by the Bishop', possibly in Achonry, but including unidentified town plots. One of the tenants is Archdeacon Henderson, who was archdeacon of Achonry, 1760-1813, so it is assumed to pre-date 1813
7. Table of 'Leases of Glebe Lands, Diocese of Achonry' containing names of tenants, glebe trustees, quantity of land, rent and type of lease, compiled c. 1813, but dating back to 1756
1813
8. Rents due listed by tenant name with arrears and rents received, for unspecified lands but some details of glebes included at the end of the table
1817-18
9. Schedules of 'Tenants of Kilbride Rents' in account with Mr Palmer' [diocesan registrar] including names and rent income breakdown
1828-30
10. Document entitled 'Acreage of income for Achonry' including names of tenants and yearly rents, 1829-31
1831
11. Tabular returns of rates of renewal fines on the Bishop of Killala and Achonry and return to the Commissioners of Ecclesiastical Inquiry of tenants and denominations in

- counties Mayo and Sligo; with a 'Return of the amount of the income of the See of Killala and Achonry, as ordered by parliament', 11 July 1833
3 January and 29 March 1833; 11 July 1833
12. Draft 'returns for Dean Blakely' [Theophilus Blakely, dean of Achonry 1824-39] being a schedule of payments made since 1812 for various lands, compiled by the Registry Office, and signed by Frederick Stock, Registrar, 9 June 1834
 13. Certificates of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners of Ireland issued to various tenants of lands belonging to the dioceses for payments on leases at the Registrar's Office, Killala, 1838
 14. Miscellaneous returns made to 'Frederick Stock Esq, Estate Transfer Branch Office, Ballina', concerning lands presumably transferred from Killala and Achonry to the diocese of Tuam and including details of the 'nature of the security offered'.
1842
 15. Similar draft to /6 above, being of 'Return made to Mr Stewart' with details of 21 year leases, 1822-1834
December 1843
 16. Table of the rent charge payable to the Revd A. Thomas, for lands in the union of Ballinakill', including names of persons liable, and areas, 1844-49
23 March 1850
 17. Returns of lands in county Mayo belonging to See of Tuam, as returned to the Quit Rent Office, by the Revd Benjamin J. Clarke, Deputy Registrar, Tuam, Dangan, Co. Galway.
1864
 18. Pro-forma returns of commutation monies received by parish in the diocese of Killala and Achonry
1871-74
 19. Statements of Ecclesiastical Income, returned by parish
1901
 20. Miscellaneous lists of leases, incomplete documents, odd leases and other scraps relating to lands, acreages, and income derived, including one undated copy grant of the fairs and markets of Killala to the bishop of Killala and Achonry.
1760, 1765; undated; 1818; 1847; 1853 and later 19th century

3. Miscellaneous Legal / Diocesan Court Records, 1759-1876

This section includes legal mandates of various bishops, as well as court papers and related materials administered by successive registrars and their agents, 1759-1876, as follows:

1. Copy draft commission for witnesses in a testamentary cause, 1759
2. Inhibition given to the Revd Robert Moore in a matrimonial case between Charles Harlow, Mount Charles, Co. Donegal, and Catherine Layng and Frances Wallace of Finnit, Co. Sligo, 2 May 1779
3. Case involving the goods and chattels of Gabriel Egan of Rathnavart, parish of Ballisakeery, Co. Mayo, excommunicated for contempt, 1 January 1790
4. Original citation summoning John and Jane Caldwell otherwise Forrester and Elizabeth Barrett, to appear before a vicar general or judge competent in the church of Killmoremoy, signed by the bishop, 14 May 1790

5. Citation summoning various named churchwardens and schoolmasters to appear before Hugh Murphy, appropriator of the Consistorial Court of Killala, to hear themselves excommunicated for their manifest contempt by not appearing before the Court on a previous occasion, 20 November 1790
6. Letters of tutelage and bond in the case of a minor, Charles Stroger, of Mullahenry, by his guardian and tutor, John Ormsby Esq, sworn before the Bishop, and signed by John Neligan, Registrar, and John King, Vicar General, with a surety of £1,000 stg, 22 November 1791
7. Original citation summoning the Revd Anthony Browne of the parish of Swinford, to appear before the vicar general or other judge at next court day to defend against excommunication for contempt, signed by John Neligan, Registrar and John King, Vicar General, 4 January 1795
8. Original citation of Bishop Joseph Stock summoning James and Thomas Moran, of Colleroe, Co. Mayo, farmers to appear before 'our vicar general or other judge' in the church of Ardnaree, to hear themselves excommunicated for their manifest contempt', 18 May 1801
9. Three licences signed by Cornwallis, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland permitting ordinations to be held in His Majesty's Castle, Dublin, January and March 1801, with a further licence signed by Charles, Viscount Somerton [Agar] Archbishop of Dublin 1801-09, permitting Bishop Joseph Stock to hold an ordination, 1802.
10. Exemplification of letters of deacon's orders, received from the Diocese of Ossory Registry, for the Revd James Hamilton, 15 June 1808
11. Draft certificates for buildings and improvements to churches and glebe houses, 'as copied from originals drawn by H. Stafford, Registrar, of Tuam' as received by Wm Palmer Registrar, of Killala & Achonry, and mentioning it is drawn from on by Dr Ratcliff, 2 June 1811

15. Copy of a legal opinion on 'Act 3rd and 4th Chapter 37' signed by Tho. Wallace, 24 June 1835
16. Copy affidavit of Frederick Stock, Registrar, on behalf of the bishop, for use in the Court of the Exchequer involving a sequestration case concerning parties Edward Waldron, plaintiff, and Revd John Garrett, defendant, 31 October 1838
17. Draft copy of the will of Peter McGowan, late of Balleskin, in the parish of TEMPLAY, co. Sligo, and diocese of Killala, and relate schedule of related probate information, as proved in the Consistorial Court by the Revd George Turloch, Vicar General of the dioceses of Killala and Achonry, Sept. 1843
18. Draft of the inventory of furniture of Owen Finnerty, deceased, formerly of the parish of Castleconnor, Co. Sligo, with cover note from H. F. Stock, Dublin, 23 December 1843
19. Letter from J. Bligh, Roscommon, concerning a will, 30 April 1850.
20. Draft commission to view and value dilapidations, 1850
21. Two commissions for the Revd William Jackson, Dean of Killala, to administer declarations, and deliver curates licences, and further to preside as commissary at the diocesan Synod, 18 and 20 September 1876

4. Clergy Licences and Nominations, 1762-1878

1. Run of original nomination citations for various clergy appointing them to curacies in the diocese, with one letter of recommendation signed and sealed by the Bishop of Elphin, to the Bishop of Killala. Provides evidence of the interplay between bishops and clergy and the legal support of the registrar in the process, as well as the continuity of practice from the 18th century through the period of Disestablishment.
1762; 1779; 1784; 1786; 1806-1878
2. Miscellaneous run of constats [receipts or evidence] issued by the Board of First Fruits to various named clergy either liable or not liable for payments to same, providing evidence of the extensive paper trails that formerly existed with this state body. Only a sample has survived here, but valuable insight to payments and claims by diocesan clergy
1789-1819
3. Miscellaneous bundle of clergy resignations, 1871-78

5. Education Records, 1763-1930

1. Valentine Trust School (Killala)

Files relating to the bequest established by the Revd Thomas Valentine (1676-1766) Vicar of Castleconnor, Easkey and Kilglass for education and apprenticeships. Includes copy of Valentine's will, materials outlining the origin of the bequest and blank indentures for recruiting apprentices. Also includes account books, expenditure and receipts of donations and funds distributed. Also includes more recent materials concerning the 'Education Endowments (Ireland) Act 1885' containing correspondence concerning the Valentine Trust.
1763-1769; 1802, 1825-1889.

2. School Returns

Extensive file of school returns for schools in the dioceses of Killala & Achonry, including three returns c. 1810, listing names and numbers of Roman Catholic and Protestant students, with later more extensive returns in response to the letter of the Board of Education, Dublin Castle, and then a run of slightly later returns for Achonry and Killala arranged in alphabetical order with two preceding letters of commission from Dublin Castle requesting the "number of parish schools in Ireland [...] and the number of scholars in each". Includes a separate file of related correspondence, 1823-24, and one stray return dated 1844.
1810, 1822-24; 1844

3. Miscellaneous correspondence

1877-1930

4. Board of Education Minute Books and Related Papers

1. 1890-1893
2. 1894-1902
3. 1909-1911 (loose, with correspondence interleaved)

5. Board of Education Standing Committee Minute Book

1894- 1911

6. Board of Education Out-Letter Books

1. 1891-1895
2. 1895-1900

6. Documents Relating to the Appointments and Fees of the Diocesan Registrars & Their Staff, 1784-1876

1/ Deeds of Appointment, 1799-1867, as follows:

Name	Position	Date
Mr Frederick Stock	Appointment deed as Registrar	1799, again in 1814
William Palmer Esq	Appointment as General Registrar, Scribe and Writer of the Acts of the Bishop, including a signed consent by Bishop Verschoyle, that Palmer can deputise for Frederick Stock	1805, 1811
Revd Gabriel Stokes	Titles to the Office of Vicar General	1814
Revd James Burrows	Appointment as Surrogate (issued by the Revd James Battersby)	1812
Frederick and Samuel Stock	Commission as Joint Registrars	1830
Revd George Trulocks	Titles as Vicar General, 1833 also as Preband of Lackan (Killala, 1827) and as Preban of Ballisodere, (1833, Achonry)	1827, 1832, 1833
Revd George Trulocks	Titles to the Archdeaconry	1847
Revd James Fowler	Commission to administer oaths, 1854 with later appointment as Prebend of Rosscreebeg, Killala, 1867	1854, 1867

2/ Papers relating to the work and fees of the registrars, 1783-1846, as follows:

1. Incomplete and unbound register of citations and accounts (testamentary jurisdiction) for Killala only, detailing the names of parties issued with caveats for the granting of letters of administration of the goods of others, 1783-1799. Further contains the certificate of conformity with the laws as a 'popish schoolmaster' of John McNalty of Ardnaree Co. Sligo, 14 April 1784

2. Table of fees 'payable to the Judge, Registrar, Proctor, Seal Keeper, belonging to any bishop or archbishop'
Undated [later 18th century?];
3. Court Fees received by the Revd L. Battersby [Registrar?] and the Revd R. Nixon, Deputy Registrar with brief details of the parties and case involved with relevant fee c. 1808-1811
4. Scrap table of fees for various clerical appointments, 1846
Undated, late 18th century; 1846

3/ Correspondence

1. Routine administrative correspondence to successive registrars including William Palmer Esquire, The Lodge Killala circa 1811, Frederick Stock Esquire, Registrar of Killala and Achonry 1849-1866 and a Mr Faulkner, late 19th century. This material reveals the interplay between various registrars and diocesan clergy on a wide range of topics from the diocesan court, appointments of clergy, glebe lands, and there is one item relating to the bequest of the late Lady Hutchinson, 1827. [It is worth noting that H.F. Stock, registrar from 1799, was the son of Bishop Joseph Stock, and possibly a half-brother of William Palmer who also acted as registrar] 1807; 1811; 1823; 1838-1850; 1858; 1861; 1864; 1871-1885;
2. Two rolls of routine sundry correspondence
1919-1925.

7. Miscellaneous Registrar's Returns & Visitations, 1797-1960

1. Returns in the form of detailed lists of the named English schoolmasters and churchwardens appointed for various unions/parishes throughout the two dioceses, with related papers.
1797; 1808; 1811; 1812; 1815; 1816; 1820; 1824-25; 1825-26; 1840
2. Ecclesiastical Report for the Dioceses of Killala and Achonry
Includes tables giving dignities or benefices, clergy, whether resident or non-resident, licensed, exempt, and other observations, with earlier partial draft and related correspondence
1809-10
3. Statement of the number of churches built during the precedency of Bishop Verschoyle in the dioceses of Killala and Achonry
c. 1810
4. Return of incumbents, livings, curates and patrons of parishes in the diocese of Killala only. The return is addressed to Dean Vershoyle, Swords, which indicates it may have been drawn up for the incoming Bishop Verschoyle (bishop 1810-34) who was formerly Dean of St Patrick's, prior to his appointment as bishop. There is an unrelated letter.
1810
5. Return to circular containing queries from the First Fruits Office, Dublin, under the direction of the Commissioners on the Public Records in Ireland, dated 18 September

1810, handwritten and completed by William Palmer, Registrar of Killala & Achonry, The Lodge, Killala, 14 January 1811, containing details of the extent and state of the records of the registry of the diocese. Provides very interesting detail about various 'chasms and deficiencies' in their extent largely attributed 'to the Rebellion of 1798'.
14 January 1811

6. Ecclesiastical Report for the Dioceses of Killala and Achonry
Separate tables giving dignities or benefices, clergy, whether resident or non-resident, licensed, exempt, and other observations.
7. Famine and Relief Records, being an extensive file of correspondence concerning the early 1820s famine that affected many parts of Munster and Connaught including counties in the diocese of Killala in particular Mayo, c. 1822 and returns for the delivery, shipment, distribution and guarding of famine aid as part of an orchestrated public relief effort.

Includes correspondence addressed to the Rt Revd James Verschoyle, Bishop of Killala & Achonry, concerning the provision and distribution of aid and correspondence to the Irish Distress Committee in London concerning the work of the committee. Also includes a statement from the 'Committee for managing the British Subscription to the Peasantry of Distressed Districts in Ireland', Principles for the 'Distribution of the Money granted to alleviate the scarcity which at present prevails in some Districts in Ireland' and List of Remittances made by the London Committee for 'Managing the Subscription for the Relief in Ireland'. There are also earlier letters from 1808, 1809 and 1814 concerning the contributions by landed proprietors present and absentee, possibly used as reference sources during the 1822 crisis
1822 (with some earlier items for reference, 1808, 1809 and 1814)

8. Labourers' returns, linked to the Famine crisis outlined in the returns at 2/ above, and another initiative of Bishop Vershoyle, including the names of labourers employed, the daily wages paid to each individual, and some descriptions of the work involved, including works on the Moyne Road, Killala, and 'cutting down hills on the new road' in a parish not identified. Much of the work was overseen by one Arthur Wallace [Wallis] who received 1s.3. per day for his work.
July-August 1822
9. Triennial Returns for the diocese of Killala only accounting for ecclesiastical extent of the diocese – good comparative detail
1823, 1826, 1829, 1832, 1841
10. Extensive file of returns and related correspondence on tithes. Includes official circular or 'Compendium on the establishing of Composition of Tithes', 1823; Miscellaneous legal opinions concerning tithes, 1826 and 1827; Petition of the Lord Archbishops and bishops of Ireland to Parliament concerning the bill of the Composition of Tithes, 1823; Printed copy of the parliamentary return outlining Tithe Compositions in Ireland, 16 May 1834 with some original handwritten returns of tithes of several parishes dated between June and July 1834.
1834

11. Return of the dissolution of unions in the dioceses
1824
12. Return giving the details of the clergy in each parish for both Killala and Achonry, and also Ardagh; their names, whether licensed; comments on their ability of discharging their duties; exempt or not from residence; where resident some detail is also provided on the state of the glebe house - in several cases 'nearly finished'; and also crucially details of salaries, and occasionally the state of health of individual clergy.
1826 (with comparative figures for 1825 also provided)
13. Tabular returns being 'Ecclesiastical Returns of the Diocese of Killala and Achonry; being pro-forma tables giving details of livings, clergy (incumbents and curates), services, ground of licence and exemption, values of livings and other emoluments. [Very detailed].
1829, 1830
14. Return of draft unions by Act of Council, Dublin Castle
1830
15. Detailed returns of population returned for the year 1832, by incumbents of several parishes, including names, numbers of both families and individuals, with detailed observations, and related correspondence.

These returns appear are in response to request from the Primate and Archbishop of Armagh requesting that parochial clergy in the diocese "return the number of families and individuals of the Established church in their respective parishes". Some returns are more detailed than others, broken down by townland, whilst for other parishes only a cover letter survives. It is nevertheless a significant body of evidence about population statistics, and also genealogical information for pre-Famine Ireland. [Note: An earlier return of the population for the parishes of Ballysakerry and Rathrea (Killala) only including names, residents and numbers of members of the Established Church 1802, is available in the Ballysakerry box, D5/10 above].
1832 [with subsequent correspondence in 1833]

16. Responses to the Public Instruction Commission [established by statute on 4 June 1834] and specifically a letter from Matthew Barrington, Secretary of said Commission sent to the Registrar of the Diocese of Killala and Achonry seeking 'a full and correct [statement] in relating to the state of religious and other instruction, and the means of affording the same, now existing in ... Ireland'. Each incumbent was asked to return 'the names and ranks of the several incumbents in the above diocese, of the benefice and benefices held by each and of the curates assisting each: showing also whether any of such curate assist any other incumbent and whom' to "have a complete return of the clergy in each diocese'. Includes several detailed returns from individual incumbents of various parishes in the diocese. In other dioceses these records were stored in the Public Records Office of Ireland, and thus did not survive the fire in 1922, so a very rare insight to religious instruction on the ground in pre-Famine Ireland, which also provides useful information about the role of the Registrar's Office in collecting the information. In one item of correspondence, for example, Frederick Stock, Registrar, complains to Henry Lancey, Dublin, how he was 'put to very considerable expense and very great trouble in doing the business required, 24 June 1835.
December 1834-January 1836.

17. Return sent to Ecclesiastical Commission concerning the building of churches or chapels from private funds, 1845, with additional undated scrap accounting for the number of churches and chapels of ease in both dioceses, comparing figures in 1800, 1820, 1840 and 1854
1845; 1854
18. Certificates of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners accounting to the monetary value of individual benefices, mostly Achonry parishes, some for Killala,
1847-1862
19. Quincentennial Inspections, being loose typescript returns
1951-1960

8. Diocesan Reports, 1870-1961

These printed reports are devoted to the business of the diocese of Killala & Achonry specifically. There are various gaps after 1874, and between 1913 and 1929 while items 7-11 are bound, with the remainder loose.

1. 1870-1874
